For years teachers at county and state institutes have passed resolutions urging that the right of suffrace be taken away from voters in cities of the first and second classes as far as the election of county superintendents is concerned. The teachers contended that city people have no interest in the selection of a county superintendent as the schools of cities of the first and second classes are governed by boards of education.

Laredo. June 15.—One hundred Mexican bandits, crossing over the Rio Grande, forty miles southeast of here, early today attacked the American border patrol near San Ignacio, killing two and wounding five, according to reports sent to Fort McIntosh, here over the field telephone. Word reached here later that one of the wounded American soldiers shot through the classes from participating in the election of county superintendents of schools. court held that his appointments should stand.

The elder Kirkpatrick had the support of a large percentage of the older members of the order. The son had the backing of the young blood and that faction appears to have secured control of the national organization. J. M. Kirkpatrick has shown confidence in his position ever since the convention was brought together and has at all times counseled observance of the rulings of W. B. Kirkpatrick, who as president, presided at the sessions. He stopped a stampede when his father adjourned the convention twice before the roll had been called.

There is a proposed amendment to the constitution before the convention which would increase the number of trustees of the national organization from five to seven.

The election of officers, so far as it has proceeded, is a victory for the faction supporting J. M. Kirkpatrick. That faction appears to have complete control of the convention when it comes to matters involving votes.

Today's election of J. M. Kirkpatrick is the climax to an internal fight, led on the one side by W. B. Kirk-natrick one of the founders of the fight developed that threatened to
